

“Let’s Talk About It”

Prostate Cancer Education Program for African American Men

Tuesday, May 16, 2006

6:30 - 8:30 PM

The Royal Esquire Club
5016 Rainier Avenue South
Seattle, WA 98118

At Rainier & Hudson

Trainer: Larry Taylor, African American Prostate Cancer Survivor

African American men have the highest rates of prostate cancer in the country, and the highest rates of mortality as well. Join us in learning more about prostate cancer, detection, and treatment by participating in the “Let’s Talk About It” program.

This is a free program. Refreshments will be served. Please RSVP to Kevin Henry at 206-440-7244 or reigningman@aol.com.

The “Let’s Talk About It” program has the goal of increasing the number of African American men over 40 years of age in Seattle-King County who will talk to their health care providers about screening for prostate cancer. The program is currently signing up participants for future seminars. Please call Kevin Henry at 206-440-7244 or write to reigningman@aol.com for more info.

Sponsored by:

Center for MultiCultural Health

Promoting Health and Well-Being in Diverse Cultures

www.multi-culturalhealth.org

Email: cmch@cshc.org

206-461-6910 | 206-461-4890 (fax)

The Royal Esquire Club

www.theroyalesquire.org

Email: info@theroyalesquire.org

(206) 723-2811